

REBEL PLANES BOMB MADRID

Several Wounded as Explosives Shatter Windows, First Raid Repulsed

By The Associated Press
Aerial bombs exploded in downtown Madrid today in the first successful raid in the city proper.

Several people were wounded as the bombs shattered windows but did not cause much damage to buildings in the city.

Previously, government war planes had repulsed a rebel attempt to bomb Madrid from the air.

The attempt to bombard last night was the fifth of the week and involved two rebel planes and a squadron of government fighters.

On the northern frontier, the rebels were estimated at thousands, and the rebel forces toward San Sebastian lay to the city of France.

Rebel ammunition low. Government forces admitting their ammunition was running low after the fourth day of fighting in that sector kept machine guns trained on the rebel lines.

If the rebels battered their way into the fortifications, the government forces would be in a difficult position.

The rebels launched their fierce onslaught against the northern city under cover of darkness. Government troops earlier had repulsed an attack on the city.

For four days battle had raged for possession of the area. The city of San Sebastian and the rebels had been under siege for more than six weeks almost since the revolution broke out July 17.

A gateway to the outside world, a seaport from which supplies could be brought in for the northern rebel army—that was the objective. Further, the rebels hoped to conquer the northern area of Spain to effect the possibility of attack from the rear when the troops marched against the Madrid government.

Rebels enter France. Deserters from rebel ranks poured into France. One wearing a Spanish Foreign legion uniform said rebel officers drove their men against the government defenders at pistol point.

He asserted 122 legionnaires in his company of 150 brought from Spanish Morocco by rebel forces had been killed or wounded.

Former King Alfonso's alleged encouragement of the Spanish rebellion was disclosed in further detail by secret police at San Sebastian.

Spanish government authorities quoted additional passages from a letter last published Tuesday which they said was sent by Alfonso to the monarchist Ramon Alcaraz.

They said Alfonso wrote "go forward with the movement. Respect nothing. Triumph will be ours. I am at your disposal for anything you need."

In Austria, Alfonso's adjutant said the former monarch would leave for Italy in a few days. The adjutant denied reports that Alfonso was active in the Spanish civil war.

MAYOR ASKS HEARST TO SETTLE OR LEAVE
By The Associated Press
SEATTLE, Aug. 29.—Mayor John F. Dore demanding William Randolph Hearst, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer's owner, make peace with labor or get out of Seattle, sounded the latest note today in the newspaper strike which suspended the news paper Aug. 14.

William Randolph Hearst has got to get out of Seattle until he makes terms with labor, declared the Seattle mayor last night in Everett, 30 miles north of here.

It was his second address on the strike, which the Seattle chapter of the American Newspaper Guild called after two P-I employees were discharged.

Refusal of the paper's resident publisher to consider a truce meeting and disclosure of plan for a new morning newspaper were other developments.

Hearst is determined to destroy labor unions and I won't stand by and watch that happen in Seattle, Dore said.

The Seattle fight is your fight and it is branching into a nation wide fight.

She told him he ought to use the gun to shoot himself if he couldn't earn an honest dollar, Schroeder related to the police.

She went on talking so fast the robber didn't have a chance to answer her.

Finally he shook his head and said "All right—all right. Let it go and walked away."

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 29.—A furious wind and electrical storm blew itself out in the eastern Ohio hills today, leaving behind one dead, widespread damage and high water.

The storm, which hit Ohio last night on a mile a minute gale after causing serious damage in Indiana, apparently centered its worst destruction in Dixie county on the Indiana line. It was the worst in recent years.

The weather bureau reported that the rains were general throughout most of the state and agricultural observers said they would prove of great benefit in reviving burned out pasture lands.

Complete flooding of the county and city of Greenville for more than three hours demolished a one-story brick International Harvester Co. plant in the city. Injured a youth seeking shelter against the plant wall and jammed telephone and telegraph communication facilities in just 20 minutes.

The Power of the Blood

A SERMON BY REV. JAMES W. SCHILLINGER, Pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church

Text: The blood of Jesus Christ the Son of God cleanseth us from all sin.—1 John 1:7

The most unpopular word in the world today is that word "sin." Preachers avoid it. People do not like to hear it. If the word is used it is in a light and frivolous way as though sin were but a joke. That sin really means a high treason against the king of heaven and that it brings down upon the sinner a curse is almost unheard of among so-called Christians today. In a land of mental weakness, in a land of inferiority complex, in a land of pride, in a land of the new freedom of our age, and the like. On a recent Sunday in one of the large

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Mind Disorders
Medicine has made great strides in the treatment of most nervous disorders, yet there remain many unsolved mysteries in this field. For example, the cause of dementia praecox is still unknown. Although the exact cause of this strange disease is not known, a great deal has been learned about it. All this knowledge has helped a lot in setting up a form of treatment for this mental disorder. In recent times the disease was considered to be incurable. Today it is recognized in its early stages and proper treatment is given at once. Beneficial effects are certain and even complete cure is possible. This marks a tremendous advance because in former years sufferers from the disease were committed to institutions where little hope was offered.

Nervous Disorder
The symptoms of dementia praecox result from a definite disturbance in the central nervous system. This may be due to some severe emotional excitement or mental strain. It follows overwork, worry and fear. As a rule it appears in families making it at times upon several generations. For this reason it is believed to be a hereditary disease.

It may occur at any age but is most likely to appear between the ages of 15 and 25. This is a long period anyhow and one in which physical disabilities are rather common. The victim of this particular disease is usually in poor health but sometimes it may attack one who has had a history of excellent health.

Dementia praecox is really a form of insanity. It is characterized by a loss of impairment of intellect, will power and memory. If the trouble is allowed to continue for years complete cure is impossible. Unfortunately it must be admitted it is often difficult to detect the disease during its early stages because the symptoms may be vague and misleading.

Common Symptoms
The sufferer complains of persistent headache, dizziness, insomnia and restlessness. Sooner or later he becomes melancholic, avoiding companionship and contact with others of his age. As time goes on there are periods of irritability and marked nervousness with inability to concentrate on work. Students who are afflicted with this disorder find they are unable to read or study for any length of time. They may boast of

Exhibit Shows Past, Present And Future in Scientific Achievement

CLOSET SHOE BOARD HAS ADVANTAGES

Shoe boards adjusted at the closet are attached to the closet door and provide a convenient resting place for shoes. A narrow wooden board is placed on the floor a few inches from the door and forms a heel rest for shoes from slipping.

This shoe rack keeps shoes off their wooden soles and off the floor. It is easy to see and easy to get. It presents a far more attractive view with this arrangement and also saves valuable space.

Prevention of dust in the closet is prevented by the sides of the rack which more readily reaches the floor surface.

Formed by a gas stove, it has been invented for use in a closet that does not have an entire hanging space.

Yesterday - And Today in Kitchen Equipment

Picture on the left shows old fashioned kitchen equipped with wood stove, old type flat iron, etc.—Contrast it with the cheerful kitchen of today with every modern labor-saving device including refrigerator and electric range. The exhibit is part of the Parade of Progress coming here next week.

AUTO COMPANY BRINGING SHOW

General Motors Bringing Free Parade of Progress Here Next Week.

Marion is soon to be given an enlightening insight into evidence of present American progress and an inspiring glimpse of the future holds, through a visit of the first caravan of science built to visit the people of the nation in their home towns. The exhibit will open Tuesday night on the Central Junior High school grounds.

The caravan known as the General Motors Parade of Progress Exposition seeks to portray the contributions of a new age of scientific progress to the comfort, happiness and welfare of the American people.

It is a non-commercial exposition showing the advances of science. For example—within the streamlined trucks there are a number of small rooms, one of which is the type kitchen grandma used while the next room is the new porcelain, modern modern kitchen with its dish washers, etc. Spectators are then taken to the outmoded living room with its bygone fixtures and thence to the new modern living room of today. These contrasts are indeed graphic and make the spectator realize the progress in years gone by.

Within the big silver tent there is another streamlined truck the side of which has been let down to form a full sized stage before the audience. The stage is more complete than most legitimate theaters having full complement of drapes—spotlighting effects—footlights, etc. Many graphic examples of the march of time are portrayed.

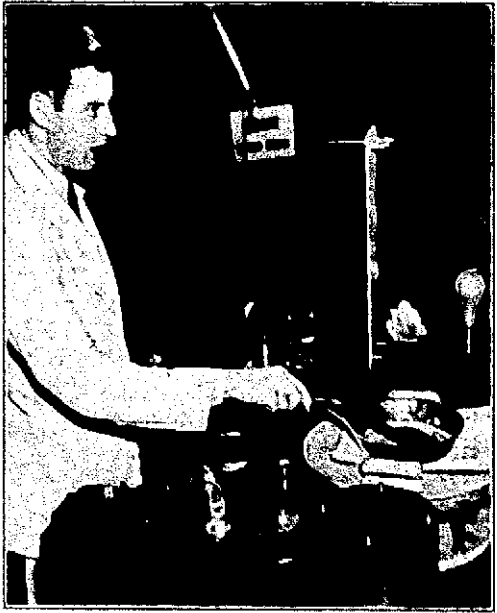

A research scientist is brought before the audience after a brief prologue. In a very simple manner he briefly spans time to show inventions of yesterday which were in their day great accomplishments but which were of no practical value but with the passing of time have formed the basis for some of our largest industries. One of these is the incandescent lamp. A lamp similar to the first one developed by Thomas A. Edison is shown to the audience and it is clearly visible that at its conception the amount of brilliancy was so minute that it was impractical but now is the basis for one of our largest industries and of course a great household convenience. During the discussion it is brought out that the ordinary electric lamp utilizes 90% of its energy for heat and that cold light would be a boon to mankind.

By mixing chemicals the research worker demonstrates cold light, but like the first Edison lamp is not brilliant enough to be practical. He further shows how it too might become the foundation for a very large industry.

The show skips from one interesting development and comparison to another. The scientific fries eggs on a perfectly cold stove—sends sound over light waves in such a manner that even the average layman can thoroughly understand the theories of sound transmission which previously were too technical for complete understanding.

The exposition has shown to

How To Fry Eggs On Cold Stove

ERNEST FOSS, research worker, demonstrates tricks of induction furnace at big "circus of science," the General Motors Parade of Progress. Foss places a newspaper under the skillet to prove to skeptics that the "stove" is cold. The exhibit will be shown here next week.

Rules for Safe Walking Drawn By Road Dept.

More than 70 pedestrians were killed by automobiles on state highways outside municipalities in Ohio during the first seven months of 1935, according to statistics prepared by the traffic division of the state highway department.

Pedestrians should assist in reducing this toll. They should at all times observe these precautions:

1. Cross streets or highways at intersections if possible, but in any case where motorists can see you. Avoid stepping from between parked cars.
2. Try to judge traffic by speed as well as by distance.
3. Look both ways for danger. Don't concentrate on one object.
4. Face the oncoming traffic on country roads. Stop off the road when cars are coming at high speed.
5. Caution children to keep out of the streets and off the highways.
6. Use extra care when going home from work. If fatigued, people are not alert as they should be.
7. Wear or carry something white at night. Otherwise motorists may not be able to see you.

Observe these rules in order to decrease pedestrian deaths.

There is a popular superstition in some sections of the south that casting of pennies on New Year's will bring fortune during the year.

Soap Box Derby Youths' Biggest Sporting Event

The third annual Soap Box Derby, held at Akron, O., Aug. 15, was witnessed by an estimated 100,000 spectators. The races started at 1:30 p. m. and lasted until 6:15 p. m. The spectators stayed until the last event, which was the added race for 1935—the International final. The derby was sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Co.

There were 21,000 bleacher and chair seats. It can be seen that the vast majority of the onlookers stood up for five hours to see 116 American boys and one boy from South Africa compete in preliminary heats and final races for the All-American and International honors.

There were 37,000 automobiles parked in the field of the adjacent Akron airport by spectators and 6,000 cars parked beyond the hills that held the 1,100 foot long and 30 foot wide concrete race course. The course started about half way up a knobby hill and leveled off with two-thirds of the track being at a slight grade or level. The cars ran by gravity.

The best time made over the course was made by the boy who won both American and International titles—Herbert Eric Muench Jr. of St. Louis, Mo. He was clocked at 25 1-5 seconds in his first heat which was one of the closest races of the day. He won the All-American final in 28 2-5 seconds and the International in 28 3-5 seconds. It figured between 26 and 27 miles per hour for the course.

The American champions were chosen by 116 newspapers who sponsored the sectional championships. The boys brought their own cars to the Derby and many of them were accompanied by their parents. Nearly all were accompanied by the newspapermen who ran off the sectional championships. With the coverage from outside papers who regarded the event as of news importance, there were nearly 250 newspapermen in Akron for the finals.

These newspapermen had fifteen wires open in the press box at the finish line. The Associated Press, the United Press, the International News Service and most of the news reels covered the event. It was estimated that more than 500 photographers—professional and amateur—covered the event.

Reporters filed nearly 95,000 words over the Postal wires and 55,000 words over the Western Union during the weekend of the race. An estimated 100,000 words were sent out air mail before the day of the finals by the reporters.

There was a fair sprinkling of children in the large crowd but mostly it was composed of adults. Women were in a slight majority. The onlookers crowded along the fence of the course. They stood in all available spots on the nearby slopes and hill tops.

It was the most cosmopolitan gathering of boys in a sporting event that the country has ever seen for every large city and section in the country was represented by a boy between the ages of 9 and 16.

There were probably more different newspapers represented than at any gathering of the press save the publishers convention and the newspaper advertising men's convention.

The Soap Box Derby was just twice as big this year as last. It is said that Canadian cities will be in the event next year and that 38 British newspapers will take part.

CLOTHES DRIED IN ATTIC ON RAINY DAY

Home laundry work brings many problems, one being the drying of clothes in unfavorable weather. The attic may be the answer.

One housekeeper decided to utilize her attic as a clothes-drying space. Cupboards were made under the slanting roof and trunks, etc., stored therein leaving a large open space where freshly laundered clothes might be hung.

A linoleum covering was applied to the floor. This was easily mopped assuring the clothes protection against dust. Two windows supplied cross ventilation and necessary fresh air.

An outlet for the electric iron was added, and ironing done in the attic also whenever desired.

NEW ROAD LINKS THREE COUNTIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 20.—The 3,700 miles of highway leading from Canada's Great peninsula, across the United States and down to Mexico City is now far and away the world's longest automobile route, the American Automobile association reported today.

This announcement was made by the national motoring body in connection with issuance of its first highway map of the North American continent, commemorating final completion of all links in the three-nation route, and showing the improved roads in the Dominion of Canada, the United States and the Republic of Mexico.

WINE SERVED BY HOUR

To cut down the surplus of wine, innkeepers of Bucharest, Rumania, are selling the liquor by the hour instead of the glass. In all wine-shops have appeared the following notice: "Drink all you can in an hour—for sixpence." The customers are clocked in as they pay the equivalent of 12 cents, and at the end of the hour they are asked for another sixpence or told to leave without delay.

Great sets occupying whole city blocks were built at the studio. It is Miss Crawford's first costume picture and Adrian created for her 26 gowns, capes with trailing hoops, and satin boots.

MARION BOOKS RUNYAN STORY

The Three Wise Guys on Week's Opening Bill With Rogue of the Range

The Three Wise Guys, one of the Damon Runyan stories to reach the screen, will be shown at the Marion Thursday and Monday or a full week. A Johnny Mack Brown western, "Rogue of the Range," originally published in a national magazine, "The Three Wise Guys" won a place in the Blue Plate Special, an annual compilation of the best short stories of the year.

Robert Young and Betty Furness are romantically paired and the third leading role is played by Bruce Cabot as a redeemed gangster.

The story tells of a spendthrift son and a daughter of the underworld who find redemption through love. Young is cast as the railroad executive's son who finds himself cut off from an allowance when he decides to reform and marry the girl he loves. Miss Furness enacts the part of two cranks who run into trouble when she starts the straight and narrow path.

Much of the action takes place on a speeding passenger train. Brown in "Rogue of the Range" appears as a young U.S. marshal who undertakes the task of running down a band of outlaws who specialize in stagecoach holdups and bank raids.

Victor McLaglen, Rosemary Ames, and Edmund Lowe are the leading characters in "The Great Hotel Murder," which will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday on a bill with "Everyman's Law," another Johnny Mack Brown picture.

O'Brien will be shown on the same bill. Dorothy Wilson and Paul Kelly support the star in his role of a playboy earner who learns to live life to the fullest on a western ranch. All exteriors were shot at St. George, Utah, in the heart of the wild, mountainous western country where the story is laid.

'SHOW BOAT' ON STATE SCREEN

Booked for Three-Day Showing: Mary Astor Picture Also on Week's Bill.

"Show Boat" will return to the State screen next Thursday for three days of exceptionally fine entertainment. Irene Dunne and Allen Jones are co-stars in this 1936 screen version of Edna Ferber's world-famous novel.

One of the high spots of this picture, which gives Miss Dunne opportunity to do a bit of singing and appear in one blackface number, is Paul Robeson's singing of "Old Man River" and "Ah Sutee." Robeson's deep, powerful baritone gives a magnificent thrust to this singing of "Old Man River."

By now everyone must know the story of Magnolia, beautiful daughter of a genial show boat captain, and of her romance with a handsome river gambler. Life deals roughly with lovely Magnolia after she is deserted by her husband, until she establishes herself as an international stage star, but she finds sweet happiness in her daughter's success on the stage and the return of her husband.

Strong Cast

Miss Dunne was never lovelier than as the captivating Magnolia. Charles Winninger plays the role of her father, "Captain Andy," which he originated on the stage, and another of a cast full of fine performances is given by Helen Morgan in the role of "Julie."

The State's bill for the week will open with a Mary Astor-Melvyn Douglas picture, "And So They Were Married," in which the "orchid lady" of the recently publicized custody case is billed as playing the role of "the gay divorcée" just back in circulation, and a Tim McCoy western, "Lightnin' Bill Carson." The two pictures will be shown Sunday and Monday.

Sarah Addington wrote the original story from which "And So They Were Married," a romantic comedy of a man-hating woman and her small daughter, and a woman-deepening man and his son, who meet exponents to a winter resort. Edith Fowles, the child star who recently said of her mother (that she couldn't love anyone as did not know, Jackie Moran, and Donald Meek support Miss Astor and Douglas.

"Roaming Lady" Booked

Fay Wray and Ralph Bellamy are featured in "Roaming Lady," which will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday on a bill with a comedy, "Navy Born," with Claire Dodd and William Garson in the leading roles.

Miss Wray has the role of a madcap million-heiress in love with a devil-may-care engineer, Bellamy. The difference in their social positions, coupled with a pervasiveness in both, brings nothing but lovers' quarrels which finally culminate when Bellamy is virtually snatched by the girl's father and sent to China.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, August 30

Sunday's horoscope shows very lively conditions, with some prospects of progress and gain, although these may be accompanied by a rather devastating and disturbed state of affairs. There are signs of amity, quarrels, recklessness and disruption, and the protracted benefits are dependent on suppressing tendencies to impulsive violence and passion in fact and speech. Make changes with sound deliberation. Private affiliations may have romantic or surprising angles.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden disruption or change of plans. Certain promises of success and prosperity depend upon the way matters are engineered. A child born on this day may be quick, energetic and enterprising, but impetuous, aggressive and tempestuous.

For Monday, August 31
Monday's astrological forecast is for a fairly progressive and satisfactory day, with things stirring in the direction of artistic, intellectual and social pursuits. While there may be a piece of good news in this connection, it would be well to be careful in signing papers and correspondence. There is a sliver of gain or stability in connection with leads, mines, agriculture or other real possessions.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a rather progressive year, with gain through increased real estate values, mining stock, agriculture or industry. There will be much liveliness in social, romantic, artistic and intellectual affiliations, with good news figuring in these. But sign all writings with care.

A child born on this day may be lively, interesting and entertaining. He may excel in cultural, social or intellectual vocations.

Married Comrades

By Adele Garrison

Letters From Children Make Mother Graham Happy
DICKY started violently as I called out, "Look Mother, in what was almost a hysterical shock."

"What on earth is bugging you?" he demanded crossly. "Don't you keep your letters to yourself without seating everybody else out of their senses?"

"Speak for yourself!" I then drew out this big strong man of mine. He hadn't turned a hair, and your mother and I are perfectly calm. I've told you before, you ought to go right to the needle."

She wrinkled her nose at him as she flung the grotesque insult, and he grinned at her reluctantly. "If you weren't a woman!" He shook his fist at her.

And if my big brother of a husband weren't right close beside me, she flung back at him, and everybody laughed. Even my mother-in-law's lips twitched until she heard Katherina's half hysterical giggle high above the rest of us. Then her face set in lines of disapproval, and she glared at the girl. I think she must have voiced her disapproval with emphasis and she had been so infuriated with that enclosure from Katherina's letter which I was extending to her.

"What is that?" she asked sharply. "It's a letter all right, in an envelope addressed to you," I said. "Katherina told me to put out your letters to Katherina and to you and dad together, so that they wouldn't be so many envelopes going into the postoffice from here. She said you would all understand why down there, but I can't see why, and neither can Katherina."

Letters for All
It doesn't seem like sending a letter to anybody to have it in an envelope inside another envelope. I wanted to send one to you and dad together—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Graham—and one to Katherina—Madame Harriet Graham—alone."

I started the conundrum, and sending the rest of the sentence plumped ahead, hoping fervently that my hypercritical mother-in-law would not notice the evasion. "But Aunt Katherina wouldn't have it that way, so we had to mind her, cause you've told us we must mind her just the same as we would you. But I do hope Katherina won't care. I know she always likes to have her letters by herself."

"The precious lamb!" my mother-in-law ejaculated, taking the letter from me. "It wasn't his fault. But I can't help thinking and saying—that I think Mrs. Katherina takes altogether too much on herself sometimes."

A swift, indignant retort rose to my lips. I wanted to defend Katherina with the assertion that she indeed takes far too much of work and anxiety on her own shoulders. But I smothered it in sheer self-preservation. Mother Graham was entirely placated, and what was more important—she had not noticed the omission in my letter. What she would have said had I treated Katherina's addition to his letter—and one to Katherina and Jim, and one to Jerry Tiers—I could only imagine, and be thankful that my imagination had not been made concrete.

Mother is Anxious
I hurried to open my other letters, and found, as I now expected, that every other one contained an envelope, addressed, letter to Mother Graham, Katherina, Mary and Katherina had all written her own letters, although I was wild to hear the latest news from the camp—any mother of young children will understand my feeling even though I had been but a few days absent from them—I put the other three letters together and held them out to my mother-in-law.

"Here are three other letters for you, Mother," I said. She took them from me avidly. I never have known anyone who loves to receive letters more than she does—and clasped them to her with a possessive and pathetic gesture.

"If you'll excuse me," she said, "I'll go up to my room and read these. And I don't believe I'll come down again. After all, Margaret, I can welcome your father back in the morning just as well as tonight." (Copyright, 1936, by K. F. A. Inc.)

In Ohio History

(From the J. A. Gribble collection of Ohio histories, written for The Associated Press.)

EARLY OHIO SCHOOL

An idea of the progress that has been made in public education in Ohio is disclosed in a speech of the late Gen. W. H. Gibson of Tiffin in 1801: "When I was a boy in my old district school—and it was one of the best of its kind—a Mr. Marcus from Pennsylvania came to have a class in geography. We got Morris' old geography and were making good progress in our common school. It's too high a study for the people said. 'You shall not teach geography in our common school.'"

"The dispute resulted in a congress of the parents of the district. My father and his brother-in-law were in favor of retaining it, but it was voted out of the school, and that is the reason I never studied geography. That is true."

A progress has been developed the census takers to adhere in making surfaces when they are warm who subjected to heavy pressure a grating, wiping or washing action.

"If you'll excuse me," she said, "I'll go up to my room and read these. And I don't believe I'll come down again. After all, Margaret, I can welcome your father back in the morning just as well as tonight." (Copyright, 1936, by K. F. A. Inc.)

WOMAN STRICKEN SUDDENLY IN CAR

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., Aug. 28—Mrs. L. A. Newton, 73, of Cheshire, died almost instantly yesterday when she suffered a heart attack as she stopped her car at a red light.

She was a sister of Charles Albert of Union county.

On Wednesday before the wedding Mrs. Newton stopped at the home of her sister, Mrs. Newton, and was struck by a car.

Well, she thought, why not? But she was glad, and seemed of her own relief, when she went back to Anderson. Ellen was a devoted friend of a girl who was trying to keep her mind on school.

On Wednesday before the wedding Mrs. Newton stopped at the home of her sister, Mrs. Newton, and was struck by a car.
